Not Built Like the Others

In a market where a lot of homes look similar online, 42 MacGowan Avenue separates itself in person. Solid slab construction, double-glazed windows, hardwood timber floors and a solid timber staircase give the home a weight and permanence that newer builds often struggle to match.

4 bedrooms, 2.5 bathrooms and 4 separate living zones mean the home is not relying on one open-plan area to do everything. There is room to work, host and retreat without the home feeling stretched, but the main living area still has a clear heart – a fireplace that gives the room warmth, focus and a reason to gather. The rear sunroom is a quiet advantage – useful every day, then opened through bifold doors when extra entertaining
