Federation Charm Meets Dual Income Potential

Steeped in early 1900s character, this striking federation-era duplex is a rare heritage find in the heart of Armidale. From the picket-fenced frontage and wide return verandah to the ornate pressed metal ceilings, decorative cornices and timber-mantled fireplaces within, every corner of this home tells the story of its era. High ceilings and generous proportions throughout give both dwellings a wonderful sense of light and space, while the original detailing has been lovingly preserved rather than stripped away, offering a genuine slice of old-world charm that's increasingly hard to find.

Unit 1 showcases four well-sized bedrooms and two bathrooms, with the same period charm carried through its living spaces, plus the practicality of a private outdoor
