"Ronneby" - One of Lesmurdie's Most Significant

Steeped in over a century of local history, "Ronneby" is far more than a beautiful character residence; it is a rare opportunity to become the next custodian of one of the Perth Hills' most treasured historic homes.

The original homestead was lovingly built by local craftsman August Johnson between 1910 and 1934, and the home tells the story of determination, craftsmanship and family. Constructed from hand-laid local laterite stone and named after Mr Johnson's hometown of Ronneby, Sweden, the property remains an outstanding example of early Hills architecture. Although not Heritage listed, records recognise its significance as one of the region's finest self-built homes, with much of its original charm carefully preserved for future generations.
