A Charming Chapter in the

There are homes that feel like they could be anywhere, and then there are homes that immediately give you a sense of place. 1/101 Palmerston Street is one of the latter. Positioned in an enviable inner-city pocket of Perth, this distinctive townhouse combines the charm and personality of its 1980s origins with a home that has been lovingly maintained. From the moment you step inside, the character is unmistakable. The feature ceilings, statement staircase, original-style oven and enduring finishes all come together to create something that feels genuinely different from the modern, often cookie-cutter townhouse.

And then there is the location.

Tucked within a quiet complex with Robertson Park
